

What to do during your free time:

Any time:

- Stop by the Ernst Mayr Library, 2nd floor, MCZ, on your own or with a host.
- Visit the Science Division's core facilities (ideally with a host):
 - Bauer Core (sequencing, flow cytometry, PCR, etc.)
Stop in the office (B239.2 or B239.3), and if a staff member is available, you will receive a very short introduction before you wander on your own.
 - Harvard Center for Biological Imaging (HCBI), Room 2052, Bio Labs
Stop by any time!
 - Center for Nanoscale Systems (CNS) – please send Becky an email at rchetnam@oeb.harvard.edu if you would like to visit.
- Explore the Harvard Museum of Natural History, 26 Oxford Street.
- Take a self-guided tour of Harvard; see the Yard (John Harvard statue, freshman dorms), Tercentenary Theatre, Northwest Labs (NWL), Science Center:
<https://www.harvard.edu/on-campus/visit-harvard/tours/audio-tours>
- Visit the Harvard Art Museums, 32 Quincy Street; free to Harvard and student ID holders
- Hang out in Harvard Square

Tuesday, 2pm to 5pm

- Stop by the MCZ's Ornithology Collections between 2pm-5pm
In the NWL, take the elevator to level B3. Turn right toward the MCZ, and follow a twisting hallway until you see a glass-fronted office. Please check in with Marcia Kazmierczak, who will get you to the Ornithology Collection.

Wednesday, 1pm to 4pm

- Stop by the Farlow Reading Room at the Harvard Herbaria (HUH); enter via HUH at 22 Divinity Avenue. (If these hours don't work for you, please let Becky know, and we will arrange another time).

Wednesday, 2pm to 5pm

- Stop by the MCZ's Ornithology Collections between 2pm-5pm (see instructions above).